

Pak Hindu International Parliament of Human Rights (PHIPHR) – HSF Initiative

An International Voice for Pakistan's Persecuted Minorities

The Pak Hindu International Parliament of Human Rights is a global humanitarian and human rights forum initiated by Hindu Samman Foundation (HSF) to represent the persecuted religious minorities of Pakistan — Hindus, Sikhs, Buddhists and other vulnerable communities — in a lawful, peaceful and fearless manner before the world.

This Parliament has been conceived from the ground realities of displacement, violence, demographic erosion, forced conversions, economic exclusion and institutional neglect that Pakistan's minorities have faced for decades.

It is not a symbolic, ceremonial, or political. It is not a protest platform.

It is a structured international forum of community leadership, created to transform suffering into documented evidence, silence into global voice, and despair into strategic action.

Why This Parliament Is Necessary

For decades, Pakistan's religious minorities — Hindus, Sikhs, Buddhists and other non-Muslim communities — have faced:

- Forced conversions and marriages
- Targeted violence and social boycotts
- Economic exclusion and land dispossession
- Blasphemy-related threats
- Institutional discrimination
- Complete absence of international representation

And for decades, the persecution of Pakistan's minorities has remained:

- Under-documented
- Poorly represented
- Internationally ignored

While atrocities have continued, the victims themselves were never empowered to speak as a consolidated body, backed by documentation, discipline and institutional credibility.

The Pak Hindu International Parliament of Human Rights exists to correct this historic gap.

If minorities are to be secured inside Pakistan, their leadership must be empowered globally.

No external intervention can be effective unless the affected communities themselves are:

- Organised
- Articulate
- Legally trained
- Internationally visible

This Parliament provides that missing structure.

Who This Parliament Represents

This Parliament represents all persecuted religious minorities of Pakistan, with a special focus on those communities that have historically borne the brunt of violence and displacement. The Parliament brings together recognised refugee and community leaders from persecuted minorities of Pakistan, including but not limited to:

- Hindu communities: Bagdi, Bheel, Maharaj, Meghwal, Oad, Sindhis, Rajput, Mali, Kukdi and others
- Sikh minorities
- Buddhist minorities
- Other vulnerable religious and ethnic minorities of Pakistan

Each representative speaks for their community, based on lived experience, ground documentation and collective mandate — not individual activism.

Why This Is an International Parliament — Not a National One

Persecution of minorities in Pakistan is not an internal matter. It is a human rights issue of global concern.

Keeping this Parliament international is a conscious and strategic decision:

- Victims inside Pakistan cannot speak freely

- National mechanisms have repeatedly failed minorities
- International pressure has historically been the only catalyst for reform
- Global awareness forces accountability faster than closed-door diplomacy

An international forum ensures:

- Continuous global visibility
- Engagement with international human rights institutions
- Pressure that cannot be silenced locally

This Parliament speaks to the world first, so that justice can follow everywhere else. This international positioning also strengthens humanitarian advocacy within India.

A global spotlight accelerates accountability.

Core Objectives of the Parliament

1. Global Representation

To present the voices of Pakistan's persecuted minorities before:

- International human rights bodies
- Global civil society
- Policy influencers
- Humanitarian institutions

2. Systematic Documentation

To document atrocities through:

- Survivor testimonies
- Ground reports
- Legal records
- Community data

This documentation forms the foundation of all advocacy and legal engagement.

3. Policy Advocacy

To push for:

- Minority protection frameworks

- Safe migration and rehabilitation policies
- Legal identity, education, and livelihood security

4. Leadership Development

To train disciplined, lawful, and dignified minority leaders who can:

- Speak without fear
- Advocate without extremism
- Represent without chaos

This is leadership with responsibility, not rhetoric.

Strategic Impact: From Global Voice to Policy Action

The Parliament directly supports HSF's structured advocacy, including:

- Formal representations to the Government of India
- Open Letters #2, #3 and forthcoming submissions
- Policy recommendations on rehabilitation, protection and long-term solutions

A consolidated international minority voice strengthens these demands — not emotionally, but institutionally.

This approach ensures humanitarian urgency is matched with strategic credibility.

From Ground Reality to Global Platform

The Parliament is being constructed in Jodhpur, Rajasthan, in the heart of refugee settlements.

It is not a grand building.

It is a simple hut-room.

This is intentional.

It symbolises that the global human rights voice of Pakistan's minorities is rising from the ground, not from power corridors.

From huts of displacement emerges a platform of dignity.

Leadership Training for a Long-Term Mission

The Parliament is not limited to present leadership.

It is a leadership incubator.

HSF is committed to training new minority leaders in:

- Lawful advocacy
- Media discipline
- International engagement
- Sanatani values of dignity and restraint

This ensures the mission continues beyond individuals.

Proven Impact: People's Power in Action

HSF's ground-level documentation and international visibility have already demonstrated impact.

Due to sustained exposure and global attention generated by HSF's work, Pakistan recently convened a Joint Parliamentary Session and passed the Minority Rights Bill, 2025.

This validates a core belief:

When victims speak with unity and visibility, institutions are forced to respond.

Why Supporting This Parliament Matters

Securing minorities in Pakistan cannot be done from outside alone.

It requires:

- Empowered minority voices
- Global platforms
- Continuous pressure
- Clear humanitarian demands

When persecuted communities are empowered internationally, they become the strongest guardians of their own people.

That is the philosophy behind this Parliament.

HSF's Larger Vision

The Pak Hindu International Parliament of Human Rights is part of HSF's broader global humanitarian mission:

- To protect persecuted Hindus and other minorities
- To build structured, long-term support systems
- To replace silence with representation
- To replace fear with lawful courage

Separate regional forums — including a future platform for Bangladesh — will be developed as documentation and community understanding deepens.

This reflects HSF's approach: learn first, document thoroughly, then institutionalize responsibly.

How You Can Support This Mission

- Support HSF's humanitarian and advocacy work
- Amplify documented voices responsibly
- Stand with a long-term, disciplined approach

Securing persecuted minorities requires more than sympathy.

It requires structure, courage and sustained commitment.

Hindu Samman Foundation remains committed to that responsibility.

Support HSF. Support structured justice. Support a global voice for Pakistan's persecuted minorities.
